

Heath Henry has served as the University Assessment Coordinator for over eight years. He works with programs and faculty to facilitate the assessment of OSU's Baccalaureate Core. He is a resource for any faculty that teach courses in the Bacc Core, as well as providing support for course review processes within general education. He provides coordination and assistance for the assessment of academic and non-academic units as part of the annual review process. Heath works with university leadership in the development of materials required for regional accreditation by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities (NWCCU). His past work has included working on K-12 state assessments in Texas, Virginia, Tennessee, and Rhode Island. Heath's previous work has also focused on learning outcome creation, high impact assessment practices, and tying curriculum to assessment. Heath holds a MS in Education from Walden University, an Advanced Graduate Teaching Certificate from the University of Texas at Dallas, and a BS in education from Texas A&M University.
